

Unidentified Anomalous Phenomenon and Non-Human Intelligence

A briefing note for average people
May 25, 2024

Introduction

NHI stands for Non-Human Intelligence, and UAP stands for Unidentified Anomalous Phenomenon - that's what we call UFOs these days. Why are you reading a briefing note from a down-to-earth, everyday consultant on these acronyms that are out of this world? We promise you that this isn't an exercise or a metaphor – it concerns a tangible, real phenomenon, and represents a real conversation happening right now in the highest halls of government around the world, and it has a good chance of impacting your leadership, so we wanted to help you make sense of the headlines that you may have seen and likely will continue to see in the coming months.

If your reaction to that paragraph is “That’s a bunch of malarkey”, then welcome to the club – that’s how we felt too when we first started trying to understand why UAPs were all over the news. That’s why we are writing this briefing note – “Team Malarkey”, this briefing note is for you, and we promise it’s malarkey-free. At the end of this document you will understand why so many serious people in leadership are taking this issue seriously, with more doing so every day. If you are a leader of any kind - in a community, a workplace, or school - this is a resource to catch you up. Leaders are essential during disruptive times, and the UAP issue represents the potential for a significant disruption – if you need more background on disruption in general, check out our Disruption Series on our blog.

Right out of the gate, you need to know this: UAP are not hypothetical anymore nor are they the realm of conspiracy theorists. According to the US Government (and lots of other governments), UAP are real physical objects flying around in ways that we cannot explain, and according to Colonel Karl Nell during his presentation at the SALT conference on May 21st, they’ve been engaging with us for a long time. Colonel Nell is just one of many leaders around the world that are telling us to pay attention, and he’s in good company with names like former President Barack Obama, Harvard Professor Dr. Avi Loeb, Senator Chuck Schumer \(D\) and Senator Mike Rounds \(R\), Senator John McCain \(R\) and a 'who's-who' list of political movers and shakers over the past 10 years.

Each of the links above will take you to credible sources that confirm what we’ve just wrote, and there’s a lot more where they came from. It is important to be abundantly clear here: This is not Authentik Consulting and Training telling you that UFOs are real. This is some of the most important and significant leaders of the free world telling you that. We aren’t at the stage of knowing what they are, but if you have dismissed this topic before because you thought the entire UFO topic is a bunch of nonsense, it’s time to allow your thinking to evolve on that.

Background

This is a complex topic with a lot of information to investigate. For the sake of this briefing note, we'll focus on the modern era, focusing on primary sources linked below:

- In 2017, the New York Times broke the story that the US Government had continued to study UFOs in secret, despite publicly ridiculing and dismissing the topic for decades. Crucially, this article featured two “leaked” videos showing objects maneuvering in ways that is unlike any human technology, the FLIR1 and the Gimbal.
- In 2020, the United States Navy confirmed the videos were real, and they did not know what they were.
- Significant legislative activity happened, including an initial review by the Office of the Director for National Intelligence, the establishment of the All-Domain Anomaly Resolution Office, several pieces of legislation including a bi-partisan 65-page amendment to the National Defense Authorization Act (the bill that allows the US Government to pay for the military) by Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer and Senator Mike Rounds.

To quote Sen. Schumer: “The United States Government has gathered a great deal of information about UAPs over the decades but has refused to share it with the American people...We have also been notified by multiple credible people that information on UAPs has been withheld from Congress which...is a violation of laws regarding full notification to the legislative branch”. That’s a scandal, folks. A big one.

- In 2023, highly decorated military officer David Grusch testified under oath before Congress that the United States has been running a secret crash retrieval program for decades and was in possession of craft and bodies not of human origin.
- In 2024, another highly decorated military officer named Colonel Karl Nell (mentioned above) confirmed that NHI are here and have been for a while.

There is undoubtedly something going on to command the level of attention from leaders around the world, and qualified, credible people who are in positions to know what that “something” is have been saying some pretty incredible stuff.

Why Does This Matter

- 1) National Security: If you are a citizen of a NATO member nation, or you are living in a place protected by the NATO sphere of influence, you need to know that these things are flying over protected airspace with impunity. Former Deputy Secretary of Defense Chris Mellon has written a detailed report on these advanced drones of unknown origin that are majorly disrupting the ability for the American military to operate, and this is confirmed by Senator Marco Rubio - more than once. Rubio has been the Chair of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence by the way - the committee that knows all the secrets (or at least, is supposed to know). The UAPs being reported are a serious issue for military aviators, and demonstrate flight capabilities that our known technology cannot match.

In short, these things are so capable that the biggest and strongest military in the world is powerless to do anything about them – and the whole reason the military exists is to protect our borders. If they cannot protect the airspace over their own bases, as Mellon has identified, how are they supposed to protect the nation?

The allegations that these have been known about, but covered up, for decades is a massive scandal and constitutional crisis, which can be significantly impactful to our trust and faith in our systems, trust which is already concerningly fragile.

- 2) Technological Implications: A thorough research study examining how these things move states that they exhibit extraordinary abilities, including: “travelling at extremely high speeds, changing direction or accelerating and incredibly high rates, and hovering motionless for extended periods of time” and that “these craft appear to violate the laws of physics in that they do not have flight or control surfaces, any visible means of propulsion...and can operate in multiple media, such as space (low Earth orbit), air, and water without apparent hindrance, sonic booms, or heat dumps”. Further, the authors take conservative estimates on acceleration and speed based on an analysis of the many encounters on record and calculate that these things are pulling between 100g and 5,000g in their maneuvers.

Our most advanced piloted fighter jet, the F-35, can only withstand about 13.5g before it disintegrates. Our best unmanned missiles can handle about 35g before they come apart at the seams. We cannot - as far as we know - build things that withstand 100g. If your family minivan is in a big car crash at 50 kph, a typical adult passenger will experience less than 30g and the van will not be driveable.

Let's keep going with the minivan analogy, and assume it was magical so it could hold together at high G-forces. If you took your family's 7-seat chariot and accelerate it at “just” 100g (the lowest range for the UAP) it would be travelling 10,800 km/hr (6,710 mph) after just 3 seconds - and that's one of the slow ones. The force required to get your 2-ton minivan going that fast is the equivalent of a space shuttle's booster, and if you somehow managed to strap a shuttle booster to your magic minivan and got it to accelerate this fast, your body would turn to mush.

These UAP are doing all this and then some, and we have no idea how. These things don't have wings. They don't have rotors. They do not have any evidence rocket or jet exhaust, and they can go from a hover to incredibly high speeds in seconds. We have no idea how they do any of this. But we do know they are doing it. These objects have been observed and recorded by multiple highly qualified eyewitnesses in addition to being captured on radar and video.

The only explanation is that these objects are using technology we do not publicly understand. As far as the public knows, no nation on earth can build these things, nor can any civilian scientists explain how they work because no conventional technology would allow them to move like this. It is likely these objects are harnessing energy or manipulating mass in ways that are far beyond the understanding of our current public science. What's their power source? We don't know. That's the reason you need to pay attention to this - the technological implications in a world wracked by climate change and scarcity are significant - as are the consequences if this technology is exploited by an adversary.

- 3) The Existential Question: Since the dawn of humanity, we've looked to the skies and asked "are we alone?". We've already published a more detailed summary that goes into some of the possible explanations for UAP, and explains that the most out-there hypothesis (no pun intended) has a reasonable probability of being the correct one, but we don't have a lot of data yet and will not assign a confidence level to which hypothesis is correct at this time. To be clear, we are not claiming to know what this is, but the short version is: it's either ours, or one of our adversaries, and if it's not that – whose are they? The answer to that question has profound implications on all of us.

Humans are a paradox - we are amazingly adaptable, and yet we struggle with change. The reason you need to pay attention to this issue is that there is something going on here. And that something, no matter how this plays out, is likely going to have an impact on the people around you. It could just be a massive scandal about government oversight. It could be one of our enemies has the ability to do whatever they want whenever they want and we cannot stop them. Or, it could be that for the first time in the history of humanity, the existential question has a chance to be answered as the Governments of the world investigate, legislate, and disclose this information.

We have no idea what comes after the dust settles here, and it's still being kicked up by a lot of factors, but if this pans out the way the above suggests it will, we do know one thing: We are in this together as a species. If ever there was a time to set aside petty differences and connect over our shared humanity now is that time, and now that you are informed on this issue, maybe your leadership can help us do that. In times of great disruption, we all end up counting on each other to get through it – and that means in a way, we're all counting on you.

Conclusion

- 1) UFOs - now called UAP - are a real, physical phenomenon that our governments are taking incredibly seriously. They are not the stuff of tin-foil conspiracy theorists, but a pressing issue for legislators, scientists, and military leaders worldwide.
- 2) There is credible evidence that knowledge about UAPs has been kept from almost everyone for a very long time, including allegations that a US government crash retrieval program that is in possession of non-human craft and bodied has been operating outside of the oversight of elected leaders for decades.
- 3) UAP represent a significant national security, technological, and existential challenge for people who lead people. We have a responsibility to each other to navigate this.

We will continue to provide resources like this as our research continues. Sign up for our mailing list to keep up to date.

What We Do at Authentik:

Leadership & Organizational Development:
